'STREET TALK,' WITNESS SAYS

By PAUL R. MALLON United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, May 9.—Questioning of Secretary of Commerce Hoover before the senate campaign investigating committee today became so heated that at one point Hoover interrupted to ask: "Isn't this committee getting down to deal with a small type of street talk?"

Members of the committee became aroused and Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, who was conducting the examination, said he had been prompted to ask searching questions by responsible authorities who gave him information.

Hoover characterized many suggestions in the questions as "sland'rous," "absolutely false" and "grotesque."

HOVER MANAGER CONCEDES 33 INDIANA DELEGATES TO WATSON

Favorite Son Piles Up Huge Primary Lead

2793 of 3610 Precincts in State Give Senator Advantage of 25,000

By BERT M. DEMBY United Press Staff Correspondent INDIANAPOLIS, May 9.—U. S. Senator James E. Watson this afternoon was conceded Indiana's 33 delegates to the Republican national convention in a statement by Oscar Feelling, Indiana manager for Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover.

Convinced by the mounting Watson total that the "favorite son" victory in Tuesday's primary was beyond all doubt, Feelling extended his congratulations to the Indiana senator.

"From a standpoint of actual votes," Feelling said, "Herbert Hoover has been defeated, but considering the fight he waged and against whom, he has won a great victory."

Senator Watson this afternoon continued to pile up majority over Hoover. With 2793 of the state's 3610 precincts reporting, the Watson lead was approximately 25,000. The vote was: Watson, 153,201; Hoover, 128,892.

The counties which gave Watson his lead were those of the agricultural section. Early last night, Secretary Hoover assumed a commanding lead and at one time held a margin of 15,000. That lead vanished rapidly however, and this morning the tide turned in favor of Watson.

BILL MEHLHORN LEADS BRITISH GOLF TOURNEY

American's Card Reads 71; Gene Sarazen Second And Jurado Third

(By United Press) SANDWICH, Eng., May 9.—Following in the footsteps of Robert T. Jones, of Atlanta, twice winner of the British Open golf championship leading American contenders for this year's title went to the first round of the championship proper today.

With "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn showing the way with 71 and swarthy little Gene Sarazen at his heels with 72, the professionals from the United States outshone their British rivals.

And to prove that all the threat to the title from overseas did not come from North America, little Joe Jurado, the Argentinean, was third with 74, a stroke ahead of Walter Hagen and the leading British contenders, George Duncan and Archie Compston.

Of the Americans figured as possible winners when the field of 112 set out through a light rain for the first round, Tommy Armour, American Open champion, and Jim Barnes, a former British titleholder, did poorly, both taking 81.

CAMPAIGN LOG

(By United Press) The Indiana primary, for which Herbert Hoover and James E. Watson had made vigorous campaigns for the state's delegation of 33 to the Republican National convention, apparently resulted in one of the greatest primary votes in the state's history.

Early returns from industrial districts gave Hoover the lead, but later rural returns gave the advantage to Watson. It may be some time before the tabulation is completed and the outcome made known.

Anti-Smith candidates for delegates, at large from Alabama to the Democratic National convention were in the lead after the state primary. It was indicated the state would send an unqualified delegation to Houston.

Reports from most of the Texas Democratic county conventions said there was general sentiment favoring a dry Democratic presidential candidate.

Chang Turns Attention To Japan 'Danger'

Northern War Lord Orders Halt in Fighting with Southern Troops

BY C. D. BESS United Press Staff Correspondent PEKING, May 9.—Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, commander-in-chief of the northern Chinese armies, tonight ordered all his troops to cease fighting, as all China was faced by "outside danger."

Chang Tso-Lin made his action known in an official statement. Chang Tso-Lin made his statement in response to an appeal by the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce for all factions to unite against Japan.

Sees Other Dangers Chang Tso-Lin's statement said he had attempted to fight Communism as a part of his campaign against the Nationalist, but that now there were other dangers.

"It is highly regrettable," he said, "that foreigners should be involved in our domestic troubles." Desultory fighting continued today between the Chinese Nationalist army and the Japanese expeditionary force at Tsin-Fu with advances here stating that the Nationalists had evacuated the occupied zone.

Casualties were said to be small. Much of the operations was believed to be from snipers, who have been reported active in the last 48 hours in the stricken territory. Japs Reported Isolated Earlier unconfirmed reports said the Japanese were in an isolated and extremely precarious position. Nationalists were reported to have cut the Tsin-Tsingtao railroad, near Minchui, thus preventing the Japanese troop movement from the port of Tientsin.

Through the night Tsin-Fu was reported in darkness, as the electric plant of the city was destroyed. Other advices here said that Japanese troops were moving on towards Tsin-Fu. Major General Iwakura was reported advancing with a mixed brigade from Tsin-tung, while 2500 additional troops and two airplanes were reported to have left Dairen Monday and were due at Tsin-Fu today.

PROBE OF ALLEGED DAM LOBBY ASKED

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The federal trade commission was urged today to widen the scope of its utilities investigation to include activities of the city of Los Angeles and California groups in favor of Boulder dam.

Representative L. W. Douglas, Democrat, Arizona, appeared before the commission and read a long resolution charging existence of an extensive lobby for the Swing-Johnson dam bill for government construction of Boulder dam project.

Los Angeles has financed propaganda and lobbyists for the Boulder dam, Douglas declared. He said the city had spent nearly $400,000 to win support for the Swing-Johnson bill.

COUNTY BANK CASE IN SUPREME COURT

Justice Louis Myers and former Associate Justice Warren Olney, of the state supreme court, and Oscar Lawler, former assistant attorney general of the United States under President Taft.

The United Security bank was asking that an alternate writ of prohibition, which restrained Judge James L. Allen, of the superior court of Orange county, from hearing an injunction brought against it by the Security Trust and Savings bank, be made absolute.

Judge Allen had granted a temporary injunction enjoining the United Security from the use of the word "Security" in its name and was this week to hear arguments as to whether the restraining order should be made permanent.

Not Reviewable, Claim

Attorneys for the United Security, which has more than 50 branches throughout the state, argued that the granting of the name "Security" to it by Will C. Wood, state superintendent of banks, was conclusive and not reviewable by the Orange county superior court.

It was the contention of attorneys for the Security Trust and Savings bank, which has more than 50 branches in Southern California, that the decisions of an appointive officer are reviewable in the courts and that the action of the state superintendent of banks in granting a newly created branch institution a name that has been used for 40 years by the Southern California institution was a grave injustice to it.

They asserted that the similarity in names of the two banks had led to endless confusion and amounted to an infringement on goodwill.

HOOVER MAKES HEATED REPLIES TO COMMITTEE

banking on optimism and not on promises?" Barkley asked at one point.

"I don't resent you asking that question, Senator, but I resent the implication of it," Hoover replied with considerable heat.

Hoover persistently declined to name the senator who had called him with reference to the West Virginia situation.

"Do you know what caused Governor Gore, of West Virginia, to change his support from Lowden to you?" Barkley asked.

"I didn't know he had changed," Hoover replied.

Chairman Steiwer asked if Hoover had received any promise of support from West Virginia bankers—and particularly whether he had received a letter from a "Mr. Wilk," cashier of a bank owned by Republican National Committeeman Hyman, of West Virginia.

Hoover replied he knew of no such arrangement, but that a number of letters and telegrams had come to his office which might refer to such a matter.

"The citizens of West Virginia certainly have a right to name their choice for the presidency," Hoover interrupted at another point, when pressed by Steiwer. "It is no crime for a man to enter a primary."

"Of course not," said Steiwer. "We will treat all candidates alike," he hoped so, said Hoover.

Senator Dale, Republican, Vermont, asked Hoover why he appeared to resent the committee's examination.

Resents Implications

"I am not resentful at the committee," said Hoover, "but I am resentful at the implications in some of your questions."

"Have any negotiations been conducted with Mr. Will Hays to give you the support of the movies?" Barkley asked.

"Mr. Hays wouldn't have any influence to do anything like that," Hoover then was excused.

Hoover said the story circulated yesterday from New York by Allen Fox that a "movie campaign" for Hoover was being contemplated was false.

He said the facts were that his workers had looked over some old Russian relief movies, but had found them unsuitable for use.

Didn't Confer With Adams

He said he had no conferences with John T. Adams, former chairman of the Republican national committee, but that he understood Adams had issued a statement supporting him before Adams left for Europe.

"Do you know Roy Howard, chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard newspapers?" Barkley asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Have you had any conferences with him?"

"Yes, sir. He is a very ardent supporter of mine and he has been to see me several times."

"His papers are supporting you?"

"Yes, they made a public announcement to that effect some time ago."

Death Notices

A WORD OF COMFORT
I wonder if our physical susceptibility to disease is not a parable of the dangers which beset the soul.

As we build up "health" our powers of resistance multiply and our immunity from some forms develops. As we increase our vitality, the capacity to make a quick recovery emerges.

So, with the spirit. No matter what weakness we may have evidenced, on matter what griefs and sorrows we may have to face, the strength which comes from communion with God is the decisive element in our progress into spiritual wholeness, understanding and joy.

SCHUL—May 9, 1933, at his home, 1902 Spurgeon street, Henry Schul, aged 65. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice Schul; one brother, Herman Schul; one nephew and niece, Jack and Betty Schul, of Santa Ana. Funeral services will be held from the Harrell and Brown Funeral home, 116 West Seventeenth street, at a time to be announced later.

MUSIC CONTEST WILL BE HELD HERE THURSDAY

BY FRANCES HUNT BEESON
Santa Ana City Schools Music Supervisor

Children in the schools not only have singing in their music classes but they also have the opportunity to enjoy listening to some of the world's greatest masterpieces of music in the music appreciation lessons.

Some few people will be "creators" and compose music. A larger proportion will learn to be performers of it. All can learn to listen and to enjoy hearing good music.

The music memory contest comes during music week as the culmination of the year's work in the music appreciation classes. The selections used in the music appreciation lessons are by Beethoven, Schubert, MacDowell, Tchaikovsky, and other outstanding composers. Some of the old folk songs which have sprung up among the people like wildflowers are on the list. Composers often use the folk tunes as the melodic base of their compositions. The children will enjoy hearing these compositions all their lives at concerts, over the radio, at social gatherings and in their homes. The various grades are having their contests in their own buildings with their regular teachers. The sixth grades of the city school system will have their contest in the High School Auditorium promptly at 2:00 o'clock on Thursday, May 9.

Parents, music lovers and those who are interested are cordially invited to be present. The balcony will be reserved for visitors. Visitors may be interested in taking the test themselves and see whether they are able to do what the children can do.

Brief speeches will be made by Mrs. Fay Spangler, president of the City Federation of Parent-Teacher associations, Harry Hanson, chairman of the Music Week committee, and John A. Cranston, superintendent of schools.

Could you give the name of the composition, the name of the composer, the suite or opera or oratorio from which many of the following masterpieces of music were taken when you hear them? This is what the sixth grade students of the Santa Ana City schools were expected to do at the Music Memory contest which was held yesterday.

Following is the list:

1. "Morning" from "Peer Gynt Suite"—Grieg, Norway.
2. "In the Hall of the Mountain King" from the "Peer Gynt Suite"—Grieg, Norway.
3. "The Storm" from the "Will-

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA MAKES DECIDED HIT WITH CONCERT AT HIGH SCHOOL LAST NIGHT

By RUTH ANDREWS
Secretary S. A. Music Week Committee

Anticipating a thoroughly stimulating musical treat, appreciative music-lovers packed S. A. High School auditorium again last evening, in honor of National Music Week, paying enthusiastic tribute to the brilliantly satisfying symphonic concert presented by Santa Ana Philharmonic society, under Director D. C. Clamfont's talented baton.

Spirited community singing Mendelssohn's spirited "Capriccio Brillante." But 13 years of age, Miss Dorothy met exacting contrasts of tempo and shading with unusual maturity and technique, receiving an ovation of applause. She is a pupil of Miss June Hartman of Santa Ana Conservatory of Music.

One of the most outstanding numbers ever offered locally, Rimsky-Korsakoff's brilliant "Capriccio Espagnole" exemplified Director Clamfont's high standard of symphonic work, since comparatively few orchestras are equal to portrayal of this exacting masterpiece. Richly baroque coloring characterized five varied movements. Opening boldly, with lashing castanet, the elaborate modulated to tender, mellow andante. The variations were a rapid transition of emotional changes, returning to the original elaborate, instruments interchanged. Primitive, hot-blooded, the provocative gypsy song surged into a fandango of fiery grace, a frenzy of abandonment, excellent instrumental co-ordination worthily meriting the audience's whole-hearted approval. Skilled work of Elwood Bear, concert master, in difficult violin cadenza, displayed remarkable technical finesse.

Romance and youth incarnate, the universally favorite "Blue Danube Waltz" of Strauss was a throbbing wealth of melody, the dreamy enchantment of its familiar strains concluding a performance exhibiting triumphantly the degree of perfection to which Director Clamfont has brought his organization.

An interesting program will be presented at the Auditorium at 8 p. m. tonight, by students from music departments of the city schools, under the direction of Frances Hunt Beeson, assisted by Edith Cornell and Esther Jean Davis. "The Euterpean Trio" will present scenes from the first act of "Pagliacci" by Leoncavallo, with Marie Bishop, Neal D. Pritchett, and Holmes Bishop, accompanied by Ione Peck.

W. C. SPENCER MAKES REPORT ON ANNEXATION

The credit of the city of Santa Ana is exceptionally high, as is shown by the following facts:

The cities like Santa Ana are allowed a bonded indebtedness equal to 15 per cent of their assessed valuation. The assessed valuation of Santa Ana is now $19,951,770. This would make possible a bonded indebtedness of approximately $2,992,755. The debt of the city of Santa Ana is now $968,128. Therefore, there could be an increase in bonded indebtedness of about $2,024,627, at the present assessed valuation.

But the present assessed valuation is only about one-third of the actual value. If property were assessed at its true value, the possible indebtedness would be about $9,990,000, or subtracting the present debt, there could be an increase of about $8,991,872. This is really an enviable financial position for the city.

The last bonds of Santa Ana which were sold, were sold in 1934, to the amount of $182,000, on which the city received a premium of $383. These bonds bear interest at the rate of five per cent.

But the added territory must pay its bonded indebtedness which it incurred prior to annexation, and it will, the credit of the city would not be impaired.

The high school or junior high school situation in Costa Mesa is an important matter. The Santa Ana high school district includes Santa Ana, Costa Mesa, Balboa, Newport Beach and other territory. The only high school buildings are in Santa Ana, and it is of course open equally to all pupils of the entire district. There is no provision of law whereby a high school district may be divided into two or more high school districts, although they may be consolidated. Therefore, unless the state law be amended, a high school district cannot be formed by dividing the Santa Ana high school district. The board of education could, if it were the wise and expedient thing to do, establish a high school on the coast. The junior high school, which would embrace the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth grades, could be established at Costa Mesa. Its cost and the cost of maintenance would be a charge upon the whole high school district, and either would be open to the pupils of the district who resided near the new high school or junior high school, and of course no tuition would be required, just as at present all children in the present high school district have access to the present high school and junior high schools. In other words, the annexation of Costa Mesa to Santa Ana would make no difference in the present arrangements until the board of education would make a change. This board has now the same rights, duties and powers as it would have after annexation.

EDITOR SCORES POLITICS WITH STIRRING TALK

Members of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church listened last night while J. Frank Burke, editor of The Register, revealed the inside story of the political corruption which, he declared, would destroy American democracy if not speedily exposed and punished and made an end of.

Burke reviewed the story of the recent scandals in Chicago and Illinois, and the oil-lease corruption with its hidden ramifications in the political life of the nation. He insisted that the Christian men of America should wake up and recognize the conditions and untidily work to effect a sweeping revolution.

Miss Spaulding of Costa Mesa, one of the Orange county contestants in the national Constitution contest, delivered her oration on the United States constitution and was received with ringing applause and given a vote of thanks by the club.

New officers were elected in accordance with the report of the nominating committee presented by Earl Elliott as follows: President, Ben. Brubaker; vice president, Isaac Boese; secretary, Leslie Pearson; treasurer, Andrew Morris.

Announcement was made of a special service for the men of the church and community to be held Sunday evening, May 10, when Dr. Frank Warren of Los Angeles will be the speaker.

Mr. Burke, whose topic was "The Political Condition and Our Responsibility for It," called attention in the opening of his remarks to the difficulty of finding a rostrum where politics could be discussed without partisanship, and examined with tolerance and fairness. He said it was taboo in most places, and he proposed to discuss it without any relation to partisan politics.

He called attention to the condition of criminality in the country—both in relation to property and persons—and dwelt upon its connection with the spoils system in politics. He called attention to the handicaps that officers are under when through the influence of those who gained them their appointments, they are forced to be derelict in their duty. He gave many illustrations showing how men today used the law and the courts to achieve their ends and are able to do it through their finances and power, with manifest injustice.

He illustrated this in one instance with the railroad endeavoring to give a monopoly to a taxicab company in Kentucky and the supreme court of Kentucky denied its power to grant such a monopoly and the railroad company achieved its end by reorganizing under the laws of Tennessee.

He brought out illustrations of partiality in law enforcement, by giving instances of men being sent to the penitentiary for several years for petty offenses and men of large means and influence snapping their fingers at the orders of the court for contempt, as Sinclair and Burns.

Mr. Burke declared that crookedness in the exalted stations in America was the chief cause of the breakdown of respect for law throughout the nation, and that it was getting worse. He described the conditions in Chicago and New York, and dwelt upon the exposures in Washington, naming the men whom it involved, in the most prominent positions (save the presidency) in the United States.

He brought out the manner in which prohibition enforcement had been turned over largely by the federal government to men in the various states who are the friends of the leading politicians of those states, in many of which cases they were liquor through and through. He then showed how, with this serious condition throughout the nation, that there were few of the nationally prominent men, and none of the leading candidates for the presidency on either party ticket, who frankly condemned the situation or gave expression to the moral shock to the conscience of the nation.

He declared that no man's judgment could be better than his information and that each citizen had the right to know where his candidate stood on all the leading issues in the nation—on the issues of wage and peace, of prohibition, of law enforcement, and of corruption—but that it seemed that practically all of them were endeavoring to keep the voter uninformed so that he would be unable to reach a decision in the matter.

He asked the question of who, among the leading candidates for any ticket, was out in the open, frankly and plainly, upon any one of these issues. He said that some might insist that Al Smith was in the open on the wet issue, but not so. While he was a well known, yet in late weeks he has been endeavoring to pussyfoot even on that question, so much so that the New York World, one of his chief supporters, rebuked him for it and said he would lose rather than gain.

He declared that the Christian men and women of America had sufficient virility and power to correct these matters, and he believed it would be done, but they would have to recognize it and see the evil before they would be able to correct it.

AL SMITH ELECTION WILL BE SUBJECT OF DEBATE BETWEEN TWO EDITORS HERE THURSDAY

Two editors, Lew Head, formerly an editor of the Pasadena Star-News, and J. Frank Burke, publisher of the Santa Ana Register, will meet in a public debate tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock at the First Methodist church.

The question to be decided in the editorial controversy will be: "Resolved, that election of Al Smith would be disastrous to the country."

Burke, an avowed dry, opposed to Smith's election, and interested in and who has participated in many political and prohibition campaigns, will maintain the affirmative side of the debate.

Head, reputed to be wet, is well known in Southern California. He has been on the public platform for nearly half a century. He is author of "Short Sketches of California," and at the present time is state chairman of the Progressive party of California.

The debate will close a W. C. T. U. citizenship forum which will be held all day tomorrow at the First Methodist church. The meetings will be a part of the county-wide activity of the state W. C. T. U. team, headed by the state president, Mrs. Eva C. Wheeler.

Programs here will be presented in the morning and the afternoon but no evening session will be held. The meetings will open at 10:00 a. m., with the following program: Songs of Praise; devotionals led by the pastor, topic, "America for Christ"; "Dollar Diplomacy," by the state team; "The Tool Chest"; "County Problems," discussed by the county president; "Little Tacks," Miss Mary Parker Johnson, state field secretary of the Loyal Temperance Legion; noon tide prayer.

A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon and luncheon speakers will talk on "Have We Had a Square Deal in Enforcement of the Prohibition Law at Washington?"

The afternoon meeting will open with community singing and an invocation. Other features of the afternoon program will be, "We Serve 'Til Midnight—Plus," Miss Alma Squires, state secretary of the young people's branch; special music; address, "Deborah in the Battle," by Mrs. Eva Craven Wheeler, state president; open forum, in which will be discussed, "How to Secure and Use the Records of Candidates," and "Is the County and Local Administration Enforcing the Prohibition Law?"

A skit will be presented by the state team. It is entitled "Modern Education." The Citizenship Forum was held last night at Fullerton with the state team in charge. Sessions were also held in the morning and afternoon.

SPURGEON

Cooked Food Exhibit
Spurgeon school had fine cakes, candies, and other cooked food on display April 27, for the school fair.

They had peanut brittle, fudge and many other kinds of candies. The cakes were angel food, sun-bake, coconut, and other cakes. They also had muffins, and biscuits. An attractive dish of jello was moulded in a fancy shape.

Zella Bales.

The Kindergarten Exhibit
The kindergarten children furnished their part of the exhibit with ducks and pigs cut out of brown paper and stitched with red and blue yarn. There were also drawings of pigs, bowls and flowers.

The ducks and pigs that were stitched were done very cleverly. The eyes, mouth, and nose were just drawn in pencil and then stitched over. Besides these there were some pitholders neatly stampered.

Betty Martin.

Class Room Exhibit
In all the 12 classrooms the work done by the children was on display. The primary rooms displayed such things as geography and reading booklets. In the art room they worked out a clever plan to represent Fourth street.

The intermediate rooms displayed art, geography maps, arithmetic, language and posters. The children made borders to explain the subjects taught in each room. The work was very well done and the teachers were well pleased with it.

Vivian Maynard.

The Fair
Friday, April 27, Spurgeon school had a fair. We had ever so many things in the fair.

The most interesting things to me were the vegetables and fruits. There were turnips, carrots, spinach, radishes, onions, beets, potatoes, lettuce, string beans, grapefruit, lemons and apples.

Everything at the fair was very nice and I think you would have thought so too if you had seen it.

Vivian Maynard

The Fair
On April 27, Spurgeon school held its annual fair. The animals and birds were very interesting. They were raised and cared for by the children.

There was a mother opossum with five baby opossums. She received first prize. There were cats, rabbits, pigeons, ducks, chickens, a goat, guinea pigs, canary birds, parakeets, turtles, and gold fish.

Betty Martin.

Flowers
There were many varieties of flowers displayed at the Spurgeon school fair such as roses, sweet peas, poppies, pansies, daisies, lilies and carnations. These flowers were raised by the children in their home gardens. Prizes were given to the best arranged and prettiest bouquets. Some of the flowers were arranged in vases and others in baskets.

The halls were decorated with Cecil Bruner roses and fern. Everyone enjoyed the fair very much.

Eva Burgess

The Fancy Work
The fancy work at the Spurgeon school fair was beautiful. Lunch cloths, glass towels, holders for hot pans, yarn flowers, aprons, handkerchiefs, cushions, doll dresses and dolls dressed by the children were displayed.

May Day Lawn Fete
Friday afternoon, the lawn in front of the school was the gathering place of the King and Queen of the May. The throne was placed between the two pillars on the porch with a rug leading up to the steps from the sidewalk. Many bouquets of flowers helped to give the spirit of May day, including the bright colored costumes made from crepe paper by the older girls. Miss Walker took full charge of the unique celebration and to her belongs the credit of the delightful performance. It is the first time that any program has ever been given on the lawn in front of the school.

Those participating in the program were: Queen, Marion Duncan; King, Ralph Pagenkopp; Pages, Dick Horton, Bobby Borward and James Waters; Ladies in Waiting, Mary Jane Gross, Virginia King, Marguerite Pimental, Dorothy Barnard and Gloria Kirchner.

The program included: Song and dance by the third grade; song, "The Frog," fourth grade; song, "The Moon Path," low fifth and low sixth; May pole dance, May pole dancers; song, "Brownie Firefly," Anne Wetherill; song, "Song of the Robin," high fifth grade; song, "California," high sixth grade.

Pictures in the Dark Room
Miss Camlin took the two fifth grades to the dark room on Thursday to see colored pictures of Mount Vernon. They were cut from the last number of the "National Geographic Magazine." The lesson was given because on the day before the two classes had read a description of Mount Vernon in their reading books.

Annual Track Meet
On Friday, April 27, the annual track meet, in charge of Miss Lindsay, was held. The events in the upper grades were the dash, the high jump, the baseball throw for accuracy, the broad jump, and the basketball throw. Both lower and upper grades participated in the special events which were the middle-car race, the potato race and relay. Three ribbons were given in each event and 82 pupils won ribbons.

Girls' Basketball
The girls of the basketball team were made very happy when their coach, Miss Jean Nicholson of the junior college, awarded them their letters during the May day gathering.

To show their appreciation of Miss Nicholson's work the girls presented her with a desk lamp and a calendar.

Those receiving the letters were: Mary King, Mary Louise McFarland, Frances Was, Louise Crawford, Margaret Helen Ewen, Arlene Morrison, Evelyn Brannon, Dorothy Proctor, Jean McAuley, Mildred Buter, Bernice Rathbun and Dorothy Drew.

Spelling Contest
The spelling contest, conducted by Miss Wherry, writing and spelling supervision of the Santa Ana schools, has not been entirely settled yet. Last week two contestants entered from each home room section and at the close of the period eight were still standing. They were George Munroe, Robert Schwarm, Elton Bogart, Ben Ziegler, Lillian Hurwitz, Louise Hogan, Frances Mallars and Ruth Jenkins.

Last Wednesday Miss Wherry resumed the contest with these eight and reduced them to four. These students including Elton Bogart, Lillian Hurwitz, Ruth Jenkins and Louise Hogan were given letters signifying "champion spellers" and next week they will compete with the four best spellers from Lathrop. The Willard contest is not yet over until the one best speller is selected. Mr. Kellogg has offered a silver cup to the one champion speller at Willard.

Miss Langley's Class Assembly
The 3d class under the direction of Miss Ruth Langley, presented one of the best programs ever given by a class in Willard, last Friday morning at the regular assembly period. Jack McClay was the announcer of the various numbers. The program was opened with a group of songs by the mixed chorus, under the direction of Miss Esther Jean Davis. They sang, "Day Dreams," "Dream of Bud's Return," and "Forest Dance."

The next number was a humorous play entitled, "The Final Sacrifice," in which Jack McClay read the plot as it was enacted by Robert Wimbush, Demont Galbraith, Alvin Cass, Harold Woodard, Margaret Ragdale, Naomi Perinich.

Phyllis Beck played a lovely piano solo; the next number was another very humorous skit in pantomime, "Miss Jones Entertains." All the parts were cleverly taken by boys. The parts were as follows: "Miss Jones," Elmer Curry; "maid," Charles Downie; "first suitor," Warren Barnhill; "second suitor," Bill Spurgeon; "third suitor," Charles Bain; "fourth suitor," Robert Schwarm.

A group of songs was rendered by six girls of the 2d class, including Marian Hawk, Phyllis Beck, Naomi Perinich, Dorothy Spicer, Margaret Hill and Fay Baker.

The next number on the program was a delightful group of violin solos by Jack Langley, brother of Miss Ruth Langley, who accompanied him on the piano. They played "Adoration" and "Diane." It is hoped that he will appear before our assembly entertainments again.

Another short humorous play was given in which five boys of the class took part. The play was "Writing Poetry." The following boys took parts: Claude Owens, Bill Spurgeon, Robert Wimbush, Warren Barnhill, Demont Galbraith. This program was ended with a number of songs by the 2d class chorus under the direction of Miss Esther Jean Davis. Following the

ORANGE SHOW OPENING ONLY 13-DAYS AWAY

ANAHEIM, May 9.—With the opening of the eighth annual California Valencia Orange show only 13 days away, the promise of a bigger and better exposition than has been staged in any previous year of the institution's history is borne out by an inspection of the program, the list of exhibits, the premium list and the huge tents at the grounds on the outskirts of the city which are to house the 1928 Valencia show.

The premium list, totaling nearly $3000, is in addition to many other valuable prizes, is the largest ever offered at a Valencia Orange show. Already it is apparent that the number of exhibitors this year will exceed that of any previous year and indications are that the orange packing contests will attract between 50 and 100 contestants—considerably more than were entered last year.

The first central California entrants in the packing contests came in recently from Lindsay, Tulare county, when two teams were officially entered by Thomas E. Anderson, manager of the Lindsay house of the American Fruit Growers. The packers who will represent Mr. Anderson's house are Norm Miller, Lela Bloom, Mrs. Edward Anderson and Mrs. Nell Scott. This makes nearly a score of entrants to date in the speed packing contest alone. A number of others are entered in the fancy packing contest, an innovation this year.

The opening day, May 14, has been officially designated as Community day. Other days have been designated by Manager George W. Reid as follows: May 15, American Legion day; May 16, Fullerton day; May 17, Service clubs day; May 18, Plantation day; May 19, Long Beach day; May 20, Santa Ana and Huntington Beach day; May 21, Los Angeles day; June 1, San Diego and Orange county day; June 2, Pomona and Pasadena day and June 3, a day in China.

On May 31, Los Angeles day, the Los Angeles fire department and Anaheim fire department will be hosts to visiting fire chiefs and officials from all sections of the state.

County Farm bureau will preside. Lunch will be served at noon by the Artesia Woman's club. The program is as follows: Woodmen's hall, Artesia, 10 a. m. to noon. "The Potato Industry in Southern California." E. D. McSweney, El Monte; "Workmen's Compensation and Insurance for the Farmer at Cost." E. Mahars, secretary Los Angeles County Farm bureau; "Grading the Spring Potato Crop." F. C. Cadwallader, U. S. bureau of markets; "Market Trade Crops." S. O. Houghton, Van Nuys.

Afternoon, Frampton brothers' ranch, Artesia, 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. "The Potato Situation in the Various Counties of Southern California." J. T. Rosa, division of truck crops, Davis; "Field Inspection of Fertilizer and Variety Trials." F. H. Ernst, assistant farm advisor, Los Angeles county.

POULTRY SHOW AT FAIR WILL BE LARGE ONE

According to an announcement made today by W. S. Hatch, of Tustin, superintendent of the poultry department of the Orange county fair, there is every indication that the poultry show annually held in connection with the fair will be greater this year than ever before.

"Everyone is enthusiastic over the plans for Orange county's big poultry show and rare fowl exhibit being planned for the fair," Hatch said. "This year we are planning on the finest exhibits of rare fowl ever shown in the entire west and the interest being shown by the fine breeders of these fine feathered birds is keener than ever."

Merchants and fanciers throughout the county have responded wonderfully to the call for special prizes, according to Hatch, and the array of cups and special trophies for the 1928 show exceed all former prizes along this line. Hatch states that among the cups to be offered in his department this year are many valued as high as $35 and that there are over 30 cups in the offerings in this department.

The poultry department of the farm bureau and a special committee of Orange county poultrymen have aided materially in this work. Among those giving a great deal of time and effort to this department of the fair are E. J. Campbell, Garden Grove; E. H. Koenig and A. H. Heinemann, Orange, and S. J. Scallie, Cypress.

Bill Mehlhorn Takes Early Lead In British Open

GENE SARAZEN CLOSE SECOND TO YANK MATE

113 Qualifiers Set Out In Quest of Historic Title Relinquished By Jones

SANDWICH, Eng., May 9.—"Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, with a 74, took the lead today in the first round of the Open golf championship, with Gene Sarazen second, a stroke behind him.

Jose Jurado, the sensational little Argentine professional, was third with a 74 and Walter Hagen was tied with his steady match rival, Archie Compston, and the veteran George Duncan for fourth place with 75.

By ROBERT DOWSON (United Press Staff Correspondent) SANDWICH, Eng., May 9.—Over the royal St. George's course, swept by gusty breezes from Sandwich bay, play commenced today for the British Open golf championship.

One hundred and thirteen qualifiers with a non-participant to even matters as far as partnership was concerned set out in quest of the title won during the last two years by Bobby Jones, of Atlanta.

Mr. Jones and two amateurs from the United States were in the large field.

Abe Mitchell was the first of the stars to finish the morning round. He shot a 74. Gene Sarazen was out in 35. His card was 443 344 535-35. John McHugh, American amateur, also shot a 35 on the way out. His card was 443 443 535-35.

Sarazen finished his round in 72, equalling Mehlhorn's score of Monday that led the qualifying field over the St. George's course, that day.

Sarazen's card was: 444 544 534-37-72. McHugh came home in 44 for a score of 79. His card in was 545 544 366-44-79.

Bob Stupp, Chicago pro had a round of 52. He was out in 41 and home in 41.

Tom Barber, British professional, was out in 56 and home in 41 for 77.

Harry Vardon shot a 74. He was out in 36 and home in 43. Abe Mitchell, with 78, was out in 37 and home in 41.

Walter Hagen was out in 37 and home in 38 for 75. Jim Barnes shot an 81. He was out in 41 and home in 40.

The weather was cold and clear, though there was a shower at lunch time.

Mehlhorn, clowning yesterday when he was sure of qualifying, was all seriously today.

LARRY BETTENCOURT SIGNS WITH BROWNS

OAKLAND, Calif., May 9.—Larry Bettencourt, widely selected as All-American center last fall, through his work on the St. Mary's college football team, has been signed by the St. Louis Browns of the American league, it became known here today.

At the same time it was learned that the Browns have signed another St. Mary's player, "Buck" Dondore, shortstop. Bettencourt was used this season at third base and as a catcher. He signed with the Browns in the latter position.

MEET WILLIAM TILDEN 3RD

If name carries anything in tennis, this young man should become a great player. He is William T. Tilden 3rd, of Philadelphia. He is a nephew of Big Bill Tilden, the former world's champion, and he is being tutored by his distinguished uncle. He is following in the same footsteps, as he is a member of the Germantown academy team, where Big Bill started.

UHLE'S PITCHING IS BRIGHT FEATURE OF TRIBE'S SPURT; POTPOURRI OF SHORT SPORTS

CLEVELAND, O., May 9.—George Uhle's pitching this season is one of the main reasons why the Indians hope to land higher in the American league race than pre-season dope indicated. Uhle already has won one-half as many games as he won last year when his record showed eight wins against nine defeats. He won his first four starts this season.

Not handicapped this year by a sore arm as he was last season, the star right-hander of the Indians hopes to crash through with as many as 20 victories this year and if he does that the Indians will be troublesome the entire season.

AYRAUD STANDS OUT AS COMING JOCKEY NEW YORK, May 9.—One of the most promising young jockeys in eastern tracks this summer is Ralph Ayraud, a 20-year-old who two years ago was doing his stuff around Omaha and the western tracks.

Ayraud, while he is not getting as many mounts as he would like, has convinced horsemen that he can handle his mounts and is certain to be thought of more highly before the summer passes.

He rode at Tijuana last winter and stood third on the list of jockeys with 62 winners. He is a wide-awake youngster and rides at 100 pounds.

JONES PUZZLED AT DEFEAT OF WALTER HAGEN ATLANTA, Ga., May 9.—When news of Walter Hagen's terrific lacing at the hands of Archie Compston was told to Bobby Jones, that young man was the most surprised person in the world.

"I know Hagen was just off the steamer and that he had been out in Hollywood for some time, but his being that far down to any opponent is hard for me to realize," he said.

Jones does think, however, that Compston's victory was a great thing for British golf and probably will prove a greater incentive to the British.

The City Hall and the American Legion Bugle and Drum corps were to play today. The unbeaten Shell Oilers wind up the week's schedule against the Peck market troupe tomorrow. Twilight league players should remember that hereafter all games will be called promptly at 5:30 p. m.

The score: Court House 1, Smart and Final 2. Cheney 4, 2 Long 3, 3 Cannon 2, 1 Long 3, 1 Hunt 2, 2 Long 3, 1 Morrison 2, 2 Long 3, 1 Yoder 2, 2 Long 3, 1 Spicer 2, 2 Long 3, 1 Boyd 2, 2 Long 3, 1 Miller 2, 2 Long 3, 1 Hankam 2, 2 Long 3, 1 Garvin 2, 2 Long 3.

TOM HEENEY IS BEST BRITISH BOXER-EDGREN

By ROBERT EDGREN IN the international feature of the coming Tunney-Heenev bout is sufficiently exploited, the gate receipts will "go big." The gate receipts may be the most interesting thing about the fight. And Rickard can be trusted to do the exploiting. He's had experience in that line. New York City has not seen one of Rickard's super-extravaganzas since the Dempsey-Firpo battle; his heavyweight big shows having been merely elimination bouts at the best.

Tom Heenev is a novelty among British heavyweights to date they haven't had to dust off his shoulder blades after a fight.

A glance at the line of English champs may be interesting. There was Palmer. He came over to be licked by Jack Twin Sullivan. Bombardier Wells was a magnificent boxer and a scientific hard hitter, but couldn't take punches. He came to challenge Johnson and first fought Al Falzer, the big Minnesota farmer. Wells nearly annihilated Falzer for a round or two and then was hit a couple of times and knocked out.

Gunboat Did It Too Gunboat Smith knocked him out, too. Gunner Moir, champion of England, was knocked out easily by Tommy Burns when Tommy knocked out the champions of Australia, England and Ireland to make his claim good to the world's championship.

England once had what looked like a real fighting heavyweight in Ian Hague, called "Iron" Hague. This bird wasn't named after his place where they make peace treaties. He was a whole lot of a man and would easily be the best heavyweight prospect in sight if on the scene today. He knocked out all the best English heavyweights in from one to five rounds, flattening champion Moir in a round.

The National Sporting club, sensing at last a chance to see an English heavyweight world's champion, sent to America for the toughest opponent that could be found—the idea being that Hague might as well go right to the top without wasting time frittering about among the second raters. Unfortunately for Hague, Sam Langford was easily persuaded to take a trip to England.

Langford Underestimated I think the National Sporting club rather underestimated Sam, who was then, in 1909, absolutely the best fighting heavyweight in the world. Jack Johnson was champion, having beaten Tommy Burns, Australia the year before, but he wouldn't fight Sam because he knew Sam could beat him. In fact, looking back over the list of champions, there isn't one Sam Langford couldn't have fought on fairly even terms except Jeffries and Dempsey at his best, yet he never held a championship, because he never had a chance to fight for one.

To show how good "Iron" Hague was, he was easily persuaded to take a trip to England.

SANTA ANA TO COMPLETE BALL SKED SATURDAY

Santa Ana high school's baseball season, one dotted with both bright and drab spots, will be escorted to the jumping off spot here Saturday afternoon when the locals go against the league-leading San Diego Hilltoppers at Poly field.

The Saints have nothing at stake in this late season bout except to go through the formality of officially completing its schedule in the Coast Preparatory league but the eyes of all San Diego and Long Beach fandom will be turned on the contest and to them it will take on the virtual complexion of a championship struggle.

San Diego enjoys a slight lead over the Long Beach crew at this writing but if Bill Foote's Saints can do the unexpected and beat the invincible Frank Dobranski, Hill-top mound phenom, they can help Long Beach and also Alhambra finish in a triple tie with San Diego for the pennant.

Foote will make every effort to upset the Southerners. Bob Drysdale, the local first string deceiver who has been on the hospital list for some time, will probably draw the turret assignment and if the bespectacled one has one of his good days he might cause the proud league leaders considerable grief.

Francisco Seals, is about the most discussed young ball player in the country.

Old-timers who saw Hal Chase come up at St. Mary's college and who watched him and played with him when he went up say that young Crockett is more of a natural ball player than Chase was.

HURTS CLEAR TO ROOF Jack Delaney was hit so hard in the stomach by Jack Sharkey that he insisted when he came to that he had been hit in the throat. Some Cleveland men who were in the dressing room of Johnny Rizzo in Detroit after his fight with Tom Heenev say that Rizzo also said he had been hit in the Adam's apple.

In this connection it might be well to remember that Heenev is a slick body puncher and he's strong enough to handle Tunney at close quarters. There was a lot of mugging in Sharkey's hugging when he fought Heenev after he had felt a couple of those short-arm jabs in his midsection.

GHOST PICTURE FROM PAST

The ghost of a dead past arose the other day when Mrs. Maxine Gates Dempsey filed in New York City to reopen divorce proceedings against the former heavyweight champion. Maxine, a former dance hall girl, charges "Dempsey was a bum" when she met and married him in Farmington, Utah, in 1916. She was granted a divorce in 1925 and paid $1000 by Kearns, but she charges that Maxine Dempsey made have not been carried out. This picture is from "the good old days" when Maxine was 19 and Jack 21. The rumor was circulated four years ago that Maxine had been burned to death in a rooming-house fire in Albuquerque, N. M.

ANNUAL COUNTY A. A. U. MEET NOT TO BE HELD THIS YEAR; WORK BEGUN ON LOCAL TRACK

There will be no Orange County A. A. U. track and field meet, in Santa Ana at least, to climax the local 1935 championship season. This announcement emanated definitely today from Bill Cook, Santa Ana junior college athletic coach, who was to have charge of the annual classic.

A large amount of construction and improvement work has been undertaken at Poly field, scene of the previous A. A. U. classic, and Cook and his associates saw no way of conducting the affair except under a tremendous handicap to the competing athletes. The track is being leveled and it is doubtful whether this labor could be completed properly by the time for the meet.

The task of replanting the turf of the football field at the high school athletic plant was begun several weeks ago.

Graham Harris, former junior college mentor here, instituted the Orange County A. A. U. affair two years ago.

Some of Southern California's leading athletes exhibited at the first meet while the 1937 classic was featured by a 100 yard dash between Frank Wykoff, the sensational Glendale high school sprinter, and Charley Borah, U. S. C's intercollegiate champion. This was the first and only time that Wykoff and Borah have ever met. The Trojan flash beat Wykoff that day by a yard in 9.7-10 seconds.

Eddie Plough, one of the plowboys of the Main Street Athletic club in Los Angeles, aims to accomplish tonight what no other man has ever done at Boyd Miller's Del Rio arena—that of beating the wrestling Hal Cox, champion amateur light heavyweight of the Pacific coast.

Plough is said to be a two-listed slapper capable of taking care of himself in the clinches where the "champ" has been doing most of his effective work recently.

The Cox-Plough battle climaxes a series of six fistic arguments, the first of which goes on at 8:30, according to "Tex" Ellis.

One of the most important preliminaries will be the Zenayto Chavez - Charley Collins tussle. Chavez, a Santa Ana lad, is Kid Mexico's pugilistic hope who won something like seven straight fights at Huntington Beach.

Sharkey Acts As Own 'Boss' Now NEW YORK, May 9.—It seems that Jack Sharkey will do his own thinking and talking when fighting from now on.

He always has been doing his own talking, but when he fought and knocked out Delaney recently in one round Sharkey was boss of everything.

He gave orders before the fight to his manager, trainers and seconds that he didn't want a word out of them. And he assigned duties to his seconds instead of receiving orders from them.

His success with Delaney probably will cause him to follow that order of things in all his future bouts.

LOYAL PLAYERS TO BE HONORED WITH AWARDS

Paucity of Candidates for Backfield, Tackles Now Oliver's Greatest Worry

Now that the "boog, strong fellows" of Santa Ana high school have completed their open-air singing which crippled the turnout to such an extent that Coach "Tex" Oliver was forced to call everything quits for an entire week, spring football practice has been resumed and will continue indefinitely, it was announced at the high school today.

At the same time, it was stated that arrangements had been made between the Poly coaching staff and the Santa Ana Junior Chamber of Commerce whereby the latter organization will provide a number of honor medals which will be presented to the aspiring candidates who display the most loyalty to the squad by reporting regularly for practice daily and by fulfilling all other requirements.

Losses by graduation, ineligibility and other reasons already have cost the Saints a number of promising players for the 1935 machine. Oliver needs especially backfield men and tackles. Every back on the 1937 eleven graduated except little John Keeler who was more or less of a reserve last season.

There is a bare possibility that Oliver will have to depend on an entire set of sophomore ball-packers for the coming season unless spring practice reveals competent help.

Alvin Robbin, the sophomore track star from San Diego, is expected to assist the squad materially. He made a big reputation in junior high school as a football player and he certainly has the build to fit in to Oliver's scheme of things.

LIGONIER, Ind., May 9.—With two of its leading runners withdrawn, the Pyle cross country caravan moved today toward Butler, 40 miles east, the last control in Indiana.

Olli Kantinen, Finn of New York City, and Harry Rea, of Long Beach, California, dropped out of the race yesterday. Gusto Umak of Trieste, Italy, won the 41-mile lap from Mishawaka, in 5:59:04. Roy McKurtury, of Indianapolis, was second in 6:57:16 and John Stone, Marion, Ind., third in 7:11:30.

Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, and Andrew Payne, of Claremore, Oklahoma, elapsed time leaders, finished far down the list.

DARK HORSES OF MEET Notre Dame, Illinois and Southern California are the schools most likely to upset Stanford, the favorite, in the coming I. C. 4-A meet, in the opinion of many experts.

NORTHERN AGES AWAIT OLYMPIC TEAM TRYOUTS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, May 9.—More than 100 of the best track and field athletes of this vicinity will gather here next Saturday for the Olympic Games trials in the Stanford stadium. From the standpoint of competition and record breaking performance, this meet should be the greatest of the year in the bay district.

Athletes from Stanford, University of California, and the Olympic club are expected to furnish most of the thrills, although a few others from scattered localities will help to make things interesting.

The 110-meter hurdle race looms as one of the greatest battles of the day with "Svedo" Leistner, a former Cardinal star and now with the Olympic club, pitted against Ross Nichols of Stanford. Nichols defeated Leistner at the West Coast Relays recently by a narrow margin in 14 4-5 seconds but will probably have to travel faster than that next Saturday as the club star is just rounding into first class shape.

The 400 meter run will bring together a great field, including Captain Emerson Spencer and John Morrison of Stanford, Captain Wilbur Talbot of California, and Bill Storie of the Olympic club. Spencer will be the favorite and may turn in a record breaking performance but the other three will stage a great tussle for the second and third places.

The 100 and 200 meter dashes should result in some splendid times with the great Olympic club pair, Russell Sweet and Phil Barber, battling it out. A high class group of performers will fight it out on the field events. Bob King of Stanford, considered one of the finest high jumpers in the country, will have things pretty much to himself but should turn in a good record in spite of the lack of competition.

Zembo and Dyer, Stanford's broad jump duo will stage their regular battle for the first place and one of the other will probably have to leap close to 15 feet. Ward Edmonds in the pole vault; Eric Kress, Harlow Rother, Al Forster, Ermer Gerkin and Herb Fleischacker in the weight events; Sparling, Joaquin, Kibby and Curties in the javelin; and Merchant and Kassanian in the hammer throw are other stars who will be seen in action.

WRITING PENN HISTORY

Edward Rogers Bushnell, of the class of 1901, is writing a complete history of University of Pennsylvania athletic teams. It will cover Penn athletic teams since 1893.

Bowling

Two of the Orange county teams that will roll in the Pacific Coast Bowling Congress at Orange Park next Tuesday evening are the Bowler's Inn here tonight in a practice series. They are the Certified Motor market and the Orange Blossoms of Anaheim-Fullerton, both women quints.

The Santa Ana Lumber company squad, runner-up for the championship of the Commercial league, travels to Long Beach tonight for the first of a home and home series with the crack Avenue alleys troupe, the champions. The second part of this match, which will be for a substantial purse, will be played here later.

The Santa Ana Furniture company five, first local team to take the alley at the P. C. B. C. failed to crash into "the money." Scores follow:

JULIA LATHROP DEFEATS POLY RESERVES, 4-2

The Julia C. Lathrop junior high school baseball team turned in a 4 to 2 victory over the Santa Ana high school second team in a five-inning game at Lathrop field yesterday.

Pague worked on the mound for the Spartans during all the five innings and he turned in a good afternoon's performance. Things looked pretty bad for him in the third innings when he had the bases loaded and nobody out but he came through and struck out the next three men who happened to be the lead-off trio.

ONE PRINCIPLE MOTIGUE NEVER FORGETS

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—Every man in sport has some cardinal principle to which he holds on with everything he has and out Mike Motigue is no exception. His pet principle is "never to fight a sucker." And here's why he's against such a fight.
"You never take one of these babies seriously and yet they always prove tough fights for you," he says.
"If you beat them, you don't get much credit. If you lose to them, your prestige suffers and you never hear the last of it."
"And finally, there's not much dough in taking 'em on."

MOORE LIKES INDIANS

"Any club getting the pitching Cleveland is getting these days is hard to beat," says Wilcox Moore, with the New York Yankees. He thinks the Indians are a cinch for a first division berth this year.

TRIPS FOR BUSINESS MEN

Kay Iverson, Marquette athletic director, will conduct trips for tired business men to the northern woods and rivers this summer.

Campus ON SPORTS Comment

The 1928 crop of college stars has started towards the major leagues. The Washington Senators received the first one in Ed Crowley, of Georgia Tech, and the Cleveland Indians bagged the second when Alex Hooks of Southwestern (Texas), reported a few days ago.

With these first arrivals on the job, temporarily at least, we can expect to see dozens of youngsters hot up in major league towns between now and the end of the summer.

Looking over the college stars, one finds a number of young men whom the majors, in times past, have shown great interest in.

There's Bruce Caldwell, the Yale athlete, who only a few weeks ago was being showered with offers to play professional baseball. He's expected to make some decision about the offers received within the next few weeks.

The New York Giants have broached Howie Burns, captain and outfielder with Harvard, about taking a fling with them. He has received several other offers.

Another easterner much in demand is Pitcher Manfred with New York University. He won his first five games this year, pitching, I think, among those victories a no-hit game.

Kelly Swenson, Kansas star, already has signed a contract with the St. Louis Cards.

"Bud" Stewart, Illinois pitcher, and Betencourt, St. Mary's catcher, are two other young men yet to accept one of the several offers made them.

Many others are in line for big league chances.

Looking over the outbursts of various college correspondents, we find that:

Southern California is having a polo team this year for the first time.

McQueen, now playing shortstop for Bradley, will make four letters this year as a sophomore.

Captain Henry Mathews and Lewis Thomas, leading members of the Maryland track team, never wore a spiked shoe until they entered college.

John Barnhill, who played guard three years on the Tennessee football team, is considered one of the fastest sprinters in the south.

Michigan has six football teams in spring practice, each named after a strong opponent of the fall. Pittsburgh has higher hopes of a winning football team this fall, despite the loss of so many veterans, after having held spring practice under Jock Sutherland.

MIKE MOTIGUE WILLIS EVEN IN LISTLESS BOUT

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—Venerable Mike Motigue and "Cowboy Jack" Willis, a rough, rushing young slugger, went 10 rounds to a draw in a listless bout at the Olympic auditorium last night.

For eight rounds Mike refused to become excited, but when Willis cut him eye in the ninth, the Irishman was aroused. He protected the eye for the rest of the round, but had things all his way in the tenth.

Motigue probably had a slight shade, but Referee Freddie Gilmore decided it was even. Motigue knew too much for Willis. He was calm as the cowboy tore in to let loose wild barrages.

Motigue spent the first eight rounds showing Willis how to box. As the fans booed and stamped Willis tried to force the fighting but the veteran made him look foolish for his trouble.

Angered by the cut eye in the early ninth, Motigue gave good account of himself in the latter part of the frame and went over with the fans in the tenth.

Those who enjoyed the affair were Mrs. R. G. Roberts and the Misses Roberta Middleton, Dorothy Miner, Martha Spaulding, Ethel Kinley, Alma Ogden, Alice Mellett, Mary Stearns, Grace Graescher, Blanche Sigel, Bonnie Sutherland, Georgia Croft, Helen Grealey, Margaret Robertson and Elizabeth Drysdale.

Miss Martha Spaulding accompanied a group of Santa Ana people to Los Angeles Friday evening to attend the oratorical contest.

HEENEY RATED BEST OF ENGLISH BOXERS

was, he carried the fight right to Sam, traded smash for smash, and knocked Sam flat on his back for a nine count in the first round. Sam got up with the realization that he wasn't fighting a "sucker," stalled and fought a defensive battle until he found the sure opening he wanted in the fourth round, and then battered Harue down again and again until Iron was helpless and the bout was stopped.

Irish Will Back Him
Since Bombardier Wells there have been no very good English heavies, possibly excepting Phil Scott. Although Scott was knocked out by Hansen, he's a good fighter, with skill and punch, but like most of the English heavyweights he may not be quite as tough around the ribs and jaw as a fighter needs to be.

So Heeney, the Australian, will carry a lot of British backing, and the Irish will have an interest in him, too. He's as Irish as Tunney; no less. Heeney was just a tramp heavyweight until Charlie Harvey picked him up when he came to this country from England, where he had several fights but didn't get money enough to go home. Harvey had a lot of trouble getting Heeney a chance here, but when he did Heeney made good. He learned a lot about American fighting from Harvey, and in his matches. He's a rugged, enduring fellow, hard to beat, but so far not dangerous because he hasn't much of a punch. In this he's like a lot of others in his class.

Costa Mesa, May 9.—Fourteen members of the Girls' Junior club motored Saturday to Dana Point where they cooked their breakfast. They motored back to bathers' cove at Laguna Beach, where they spent the time swimming.

Those who enjoyed the affair were Mrs. R. G. Roberts and the Misses Roberta Middleton, Dorothy Miner, Martha Spaulding, Ethel Kinley, Alma Ogden, Alice Mellett, Mary Stearns, Grace Graescher, Blanche Sigel, Bonnie Sutherland, Georgia Croft, Helen Grealey, Margaret Robertson and Elizabeth Drysdale.

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick way, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. OFFER REWARD FOR ARREST OF LOCAL SLAYER

Chief of Police L. C. Rogers today offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the bandit, who last Sunday night, shot and killed Emil Von Hasseln, service station proprietor of First and Maybury streets, while attempting to hold up the station.

The reward was authorized by the City of Santa Ana and the County of Orange, Chief Rogers said. The city has posted $250 and the county supervisors have authorized the posting of $250, for the murderer.

At the same time, Chief Rogers asked the cooperation of persons throughout the county in finding a Mexican named heat fiend, believed to have been the man who killed Von Hasseln.

"Mexican named heat fiends are not numerous. It is seldom that a Mexican will drink liquor made of canned heat and because we know that the murderer did, we believe we have a good clue to his identity," Rogers said.

A description of the man was sent broadcast throughout California yesterday. The description was obtained partly from Von Hasseln, before he died, and partly from two drug clerks in Santa Ana who remembered seeing a Mexican the night of the murder.

The description is as follows: Height, five feet, six to eight inches; 135 to 145 pounds; dark complexion; dark hair; eyes, blue or gray; nose, straight; mouth, thin; lips, thin; chin, thin; ears, small; hair, dark; eyes, blue or gray; nose, straight; mouth, thin; lips, thin; chin, thin; ears, small.

Chief Rogers and a straight-forward manner, Mrs. Theresa Von Hasseln, the widow, told a coroner's jury the story of the crime at the Smith and Tuttle funeral parlors yesterday afternoon. She was the chief witness and after her testimony, the jury returned a verdict of "death from shock from gunshot wounds in the leg and abdomen, from a gun in the hands of a person unknown to us."

Mrs. Hasseln said she was in the service station. She saw a man approach her husband, who was standing outside at the time. She thought it was a friend. Suddenly she saw the two scuffling, then heard a report and saw a flame from the man's gun. Then she saw another. Her husband wheeled and fell in the driveway and the Mexican, whose face she said she saw plainly, sneaked off into the darkness of the orange grove from where he had come.

She ran to her husband, who was groaning. He asked her to hurry for a doctor, exclaiming that he was shot. She hurried to a house nearby and had the owner call the police and an ambulance. Mrs. Von Hasseln reported that when she returned a crowd had gathered and she did not remember anything more.

Mrs. Von Hasseln testified she had never seen the holdup man before, but a few minutes prior to the shooting, as she was walking to the station, noticed a parked machine at Fourth and Wright streets, a block away. She intimated that the murderer may have escaped in this car.

The reward offered for the arrest and conviction of the man who murdered Emil Von Hasseln, 62, manager of a service station at First and Mabury street, Sunday night, had been augmented today by the addition of $250 appropriated by the board of supervisors.

This body, at its session yesterday, decided to offer the amount named, thus increasing the amount pledged to $500. The city council of Santa Ana put up a similar offer Monday night.

Von Hasseln met his death when a Mexican is said to have emerged from an orange orchard near his place of business and to have attempted to hold up the service station man. The latter refused to comply with the Mexican's orders and the bandit shot him. He died early Monday morning.

NEWPORT BRIDGE WORK IS STARTED

NEWPORT BEACH, May 8.—Work started here today on the construction of the foot bridge on Goldenrod avenue in the Corona Del Mar section. The bridge will be made of reinforced concrete and will have a span of 240 feet.

Elmer Parker and R. W. McCammon, of Huntington Beach, have been given the labor contract on the bridge, according to Lee R. Weber, contractor.

Parker and McCammon plan to place a large crew of men at work on the bridge this week. The structure is costing approximately $2000. It will be six feet wide.

NEW PETITION ASKS ANNEXING WITH ORANGE

ORANGE, May 9.—A second petition was presented by residents of West Orange, at the council meeting here yesterday, asking for the annexation of a certain district to the city of Orange.

The petition was signed by the same residents and included the same territory as the resolution presented to the council at a called meeting of the body on April 30. The petition was signed by 13 of the 15 voters of the district, which is known as the West Orange 3rd district.

A motion was made and seconded that the petition be adopted. Second petition which was filed May 2 be adopted. The motion was carried and a resolution was introduced instructing the city clerk to prepare a petition calling for an election regarding the annexation of the West Orange district on June 1, 1935.

The second annexation petition was introduced as a safeguard for the proceedings.

STAMP CANCELLING MACHINE FOR P. O.

NEWPORT BEACH, May 9.—The first stamp cancelling machine to be installed in the harbor district was in use today at the Newport Beach postoffice. It was reported by Mrs. Ida Naylor, postmistress. Mrs. Naylor purchased the machine recently after receiving permission from the government to use it.

The device will speed up the work in the office and will result in better service to the patrons of the office, according to the postmistress. Formerly it was necessary to cancel the stamp on each letter and card by hand.

The machine is so constructed that it can be operated by electricity if the necessity arises. At present it is operated by hand. The installation of the cancelling device in the office is one of several improvements secured by Mrs. Naylor during the past few months.

The postmistress recently was authorized to establish a "village delivery" service in Newport Beach. She serves all of the Newport territory and, according to reports, the house to house delivery service is meeting with the approval of everyone in the district. The Balboa office has taken steps to secure a delivery service.

One carrier is employed in delivering mail to Newport Beach residents at present, but during the summer months another carrier will be employed. It is reported.

DR. JOHN BALL PRESIDENT OF SCHOOL BOARD

Dr. John Ball assumed the duties of president of the Santa Ana board of education last night at its first regular session since the resignation of George Dutton, former executive, was accepted.

In his new position, Dr. Ball announced the appointment of committees and selected Herbert L. Miller, new member elected to fill Dutton's place, as chairman of a new committee to be in charge of the $1,000,000 building program mapped out during the session. Dr. M. A. Patton is the second member of the committee.

Dr. Patton remained chairman of the finance committee, with Miller being selected as the other member. Mrs. J. Dick Wilson retained her chairmanship of the teachers' committee and Miller was announced as the other member.

The building and grounds committee was left as it was before Dutton's resignation, with Dr. Roy Horton as chairman and Dr. Patton completing the committee. The rules and regulations committee is the same as it was before and is headed by Mrs. Wilson, with Dr. Horton as the other member.

ROTARY CLUB ADDRESSED BY TWO PASTORS

The Revs. David F. Fox, Pasadena, and James H. Lash, Hollywood, here attending the conference of Congregational churches of Southern California, yesterday served as "pinch hitters" at the meeting of the Rotary club. Both men are Rotarians and each made an address, filling in time that had been allotted to another speaker who failed to keep his appointment.

In a 15-minute talk Dr. Fox described three types of knockers, one of whom is the man who kicks on general principals and who is generally out of joint "because nothing so wrenches a man kicking at nothing," touched upon a dissertation on the value of a man selling himself on his commodity. He pictured the high ideals of Rotary and pointed to their influence in business and social life.

The Rev. Mr. Lash discussed peace, and asserting that selfishness is the cause of wars, declared that mental disarmament must come before there can be disarmament by nations. Pointing to the changed methods of warfare as developed during the World war, the speaker said that was no longer a contest between soldiers but a combat in the air and under water. He referred to the possible ease by which whole populations could be destroyed by use of airplanes, bombs and gas.

Trombone solos by Prof. D. C. Cianfoni and violin numbers by Georgia Bell Walton offered the musical section of the program, which was presided over by D. K. Hammond, principal of the Santa Ana high schools and dean of the junior college. Miss Allene Lash accompanied the musicians on the piano.

Trapped by her past!

RECENTLY a woman who a few years ago was a popular actress on Broadway, whose name was emblazoned in electric lights, submitted a story to True Story Magazine which created a stir even among the editors long used to reading startling and unusual stories.

It was the account of why she left the stage abruptly at the height of her career never to be seen upon the boards again.

It was a tale of dread and terror which told how each night, while she swayed her thousands to smiles or tears, her eyes, masking the agony in her soul, were seeking, always seeking, among the audience the one man in all the world who had it in his power to drag her down from the pinnacle of success to the ignominy of defeat.

Deep in her heart she knew that some day he would come, and that when he did her career would end.

And so when one night an usher delivered to her dressing-room a note from a man in the audience who was waiting for her reply, she knew that at last the time had come to settle her account with fate.

Her story appears in True Story for June under the title "Trapped by My Past." Told in her own words, with nothing hidden, nothing omitted and without excuse, into it she has put all the fire and drama that perhaps once held you spellbound across the footlights.

It may be that when you read it you will recognize her. If so you will then know the answer to a question you have probably asked yourself many times.

NEW BUILDING CODE ASSURED IN FULLERTON

FULLERTON, May 9.—A new building code in Fullerton was assured today following the action of the city council last night in authorizing the city attorney, F. H. Lyons, to draw up an ordinance.

The building code to be adopted is identical with the code adopted by the city of Santa Ana. The code was drawn up by the Orange County Builders' exchange, five cities of Orange county had appropriated a total of $500 for drawing up the code. Fullerton will be the second city in the county to adopt the code. Approximately 200 copies of the code will be printed for the city at a cost of $68. The code will have force on July 1, according to Building Inspector Grover L. Walters.

Work will be started at once for lowering the 16-inch cast iron water main on South Spadra over a distance of 1800 feet, it was declared following the awarding of the bid to Fennell Barnett, of Los Angeles, who was the lowest bidder for the work. The bid was for $1170.

The city council donated $100 to the American Conservation club of El Centro, which is assisting in the promotion of the Boulder Dam project.

City Attorney Lyons made a report in regard to the advisability of Fullerton dispensing with the county health department's services. He stated that Fullerton would have to continue paying to the county its taxation for health purposes as the entire county was levied for health purposes. The council dropped any action toward making any change.

A resolution was adopted which transfers a portion of land along North Spadra road from the ownership of O. A. Kreighbaum to the city. The strip leads into the city park.

A report of the progress of improvements in the city was made by City Engineer Thorpe. He declared that paving in the Carhart subdivision is underway with the base already laid. He also reported paving in progress in Skyline Park.

Work on the new Richman avenue bridge and the North Spadra road bridge is progressing rapidly, Thorpe declared.

ORANGE POLICE CHIEF AND CITY RECORDER DENOUNCED BY COUNCILMAN V. A. WOOD

ORANGE, May 9.—In a sweeping denunciation of the methods of the police department, V. A. Wood, city councilman, dropped a bombshell at the city council meeting here yesterday afternoon by making a motion for the dismissal of the chief of police, E. F. Richards, and the city recorder, G. W. Ingle.

Wood's motion was seconded by Councilman George G. W. Shoemaker. A vote on the proposition resulted in favorable votes being cast by Wood and Shoemaker and negative votes by Councilmen W. E. Clement, L. H. Intorf and Mayor Ross Miller, the motion being lost.

Wood prefaced his motion for dismissal with a charge that favoritism was shown in police circles. He presented figures from the records of 1924 and 1927 to prove that dismissals in the justice court were constantly increasing, while fines were decreasing, and said that a state of anarchy existed in the police department.

The matter of the dismissal of the chief of police and the recorder followed the discussion of the issuance of a second warrant for the arrest of H. P. DeLongy, Orange attorney who was under arrest recently on a charge of assault. The case against DeLongy was dismissed when it was found that no evidence against assault existed in Orange.

DeLongy's case was brought to the attention of the council by City Attorney H. L. Dearing. Councilman G. W. Shoemaker objected to the idea brought out in an informal discussion that the case be dropped and made a vigorous protest. His protest was upheld by Wood who said: "If crime is to go unpunished, we might as well dispense with law."

Chief of Police E. F. Richards appeared before the council and was asked by Councilman Shoemaker if it were not true that no warrant had been issued for the arrest of DeLongy until men from the American Legion had called at the city hall. The chief explained that the delay in the arrest had been unavoidable owing to the fact that DeLongy was out of town. Richards said that a second warrant was even then in the police department ready to be issued for the arrest of DeLongy and Charles Dunn, the man he is alleged to have assaulted, the warrant charging both men with fighting and disturbing the peace.

Other business transacted was the authority given the superintendent of water works, W. J. Richardson, permission to retain his present force for 30 days.

A new angle was presented in the matter of the opening of North Center street when A. E. Keespel, appearing in behalf of W. H. Patarkin, who had had the matter before the council for a number of times, stated that Patarkin's land was now subdivided and the street would serve a number of families beside himself.

Thomas Green and Donald Clark appeared before the council and extended an invitation for the body to meet with the commission tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock for the discussion of plans made at the meeting of the board on Monday.

Mr. Chandler from the county health department asked the board to appoint one member and one representative to meet with the health board at a meeting proposed to be held monthly in the interests of health questions concerning the county.

E. D. Crenshaw, of Santa Ana, certified public accountant, was appointed by the council to make an audit of the city books.

The police department reported 20 arrests. The water department showed a balance of $2900.08 and the public library a balance of $1104.93.

ART EXHIBIT IS PLANNED MAY 10 IN SEAL BEACH

SEAL BEACH, May 9.—An art exhibit is to be held in Seal Beach Thursday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Woman's Improvement club. The collection is to be drawn from the homes of Seal Beach under the direction of Mrs. H. K. Harper. Mrs. Harper has discovered a large and interesting collection of paintings and antiques. There is a special Spanish and an Irish collection, Holland will be well represented and a loan collection of the best paintings submitted at the recent school exhibit will occupy one corner. Blue ribbons will be awarded. The Friendly Indians promise a hobby exhibit and fancy work of the present and past is included.

From the first plan to use a small building on Main street it has been found necessary to secure a much larger display space and the May building probably will be used.

The exhibit will be open from 3 to 5 and from 7 to 9 p. m. Light refreshments will be served by the hostesses from the Woman's Improvement club. This is one of the many new plans for the coming year under the direction of the president, Mrs. Mary J. Washburn.

H. B. COUNCIL TO DROP WATER ACTION

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 9.—At the city council meeting Monday night, City Engineer Merwin Rosson recommended that the proceedings before the railroad commission relative to an adequate supply of water for fire fighting in the oil field be dismissed. He further recommended that the necessary relief be secured by direct negotiation between the city and the Huntington Beach Water company. This arrangement was satisfactory to all concerned and Mayor Bowen was authorized to sign a stipulation requesting the approval of the railroad commission.

The request of the Shell Oil company to locate a service station at Seventh and Ocean streets was postponed until the next meeting of the council. Warren Bristol, who operates a service station at Sixth and Ocean streets, is negotiating with the Shell company to handle its products, and since it is the policy of that company to have independent stations sell its products wherever possible, it is expected the company will not make further plans toward the installation of their own station.

Resolutions were passed at the meeting fixing the salaries of city attorney at $125 per month, controller, $175 per month, city engineer, $275 per month; fire chief, $1200 and city recorder, $135.

A communication from R. F. Patrick representing the American Legion outlined in detail the plans for the Fourth of July celebration. The city council was asked to appropriate $700 for fire works, $500 for prizes and entertainment and $800 for advertising. The city council passed a resolution appropriating this money with the understanding that this amount would take care of all expenditures for the Fourth of July celebration.

Mayor Bowen and the trustees were invited to take part in the opening of the indoor baseball season at the indoor baseball court May 14. The council accepted the invitation.

City Clerk C. R. Furr was granted two weeks leave of absence. Mr. and Mrs. Furr have planned a trip to Yosemite.

BEACH LIONS HEAR OF NAVY METHODS

LAGUNA BEACH, May 9.—Lions learned something of the navy and of navy methods and problems when Capt. W. D. Brotherton, U. S. N., retired, addressed them Monday evening. Captain and Mrs. Brotherton are residents of Laguna Beach.

The retired officer, who was captain of the Mississippi at the time of his retirement, told of the different classes of ships and the purposes and advantages of each, what constituted a fleet, battle formation, and other points of interest. He dwelt at some length on guns, and told of the difficulties of launching hydroplanes from war vessels.

Nominations for officers of the Lion's club will be made at the meeting to be held next Monday, the election to be held June 18. Officers take their positions for the ensuing year on July 1. The program for next week is in charge of William Simmons. Singing on May 9 was led by Mrs. LaRue Mayer, accompanied by Mrs. George M. Thompson on the piano.

H. B. IN MOVE TO KEEP TAR OFF OF BEACH

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 9.—There will be no oil on the beach this summer. The city has detailed a horse and a harrow with which the life guard will harrow the beach every morning. This will loosen the heavy oil or tar so that it may then be washed out by the tides. Mayor S. R. Bowen is responsible for the innovation.

John Barlow, manager of the Huntington Beach plunge, reports that a test made of the water in the plunge recently disclosed that it was 93.99 per cent free of bacteria. The plunge has a filter system that is almost perfect.

Plans for the improvement of the beach frontage east of the pier are taking shape rapidly and it is expected that announcements as to what can be done will be given out soon.

Last Night's Showers Especially Enjoyed By Bride-elect

No more appropriate evening for a bridal shower could have been chosen than last night, when Mrs. Burr Shaffer entertained a group of friends as a compliment to Miss Elaine Wharton, one of the brides-to-be of June, when she will wed Henry Williams.

For the showery skies found their counterparts in the pleasant atmosphere of the Robert Ranney Shaffer home on West Washington avenue, where the party was staged, and where the guests took the opportunity of deluging the honoree with a variety of gifts. The home made a delightful spot for such a party, and its charm was increased by the cheerful fire blazing on the wide hearth, and by the wealth of orchid stocks and pale yellow gladioli which established the color scheme of the party.

Dainty brides adorned the tulle hards distributed for bridge, to which the guests turned their attention, with one table reserved for those who preferred $50. Mrs. Shaffer had selected attractive pieces of costume jewelry for her prizes, and Mrs. Howard Lutz, formerly Miss Helen Smiley, a January bride, took first place, receiving an exquisite necklace.

Miss Wharton was presented with an artistic bracelet. Miss Grace Smiley received a jeweled compact, and Miss Vera Berner a gold necklace.

In serving refreshments of strawberry mousse, angel food and spice cake and coffee, the hostess was assisted by Miss Chalmers Lindsay and Miss Mabel Pruitt. Tables were very lovely with crystal chandeliers, garden flowers glowing against the snowy linens, gay little yellow cups for salted nuts, and plates of orchid and yellow mints.

The shower, crowning event of the evening, was a miscellaneous one, for which Miss Wharton was seated at a long table heaped high with packages. Gifts included linens, Pyrex ware, bits of graceful pottery and other lovely things. Sharing the pleasant affair with Mrs. Shaffer and Miss Wharton were the Misses Beth Phillips, Grace Smiley, Janey Wilde, Mabel Pruitt, Chalmers Lindsay, Vera Berner, Madam Charles W. Hyde Jr., Robert Jeffrey, Howard Lutz, Horace J. Howard, Walter O. Hill, Victor H. Hupp, Lawrence Kients, Carson Smith, J. F. Wharton, Andrew J. Smiley, David Wettlin, Eleanor Elliott and Robert R. Shaffer.

New Officers Elected At Latest Meeting Of D. of A. R.

Election of officers was of outstanding importance at the May meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution, held in the lounge of Elbel clubhouses, and Mrs. Edith Thatcher, who has served the chapter so efficiently as regent the past year, was returned to the high office.

At the same time, Mrs. John Clarkson was elected vice-regent; Mrs. W. H. Haddon, recording secretary; Mrs. J. H. Nicholson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Claude Brown, treasurer; Mrs. J. J. Pyle, historian; Mrs. Almina Frost Hudson, chaplain; and Mrs. Alice Hill Hatch, Mrs. S. W. Stanley, Mrs. William E. Otis and Miss Abby Chapman, the advisory board.

Mrs. Harris read excerpts from the address of the president-general, Mrs. Albert J. Broussau, given at the opening of the 47th Continental Congress in Washington, April 16, Mrs. George T. Patterson of Hollywood, state chairman of the better films committee, was unable to be present, so her place as speaker was taken by Mrs. C. F. Smith, chairman of the same committee in the local chapter.

Mrs. Smith's talk was entirely extemporaneous, but of great interest to her audience, for she gave a very clear picture of the way in which the organization is gaining the co-operation of the producers, and the extent of the committee's work.

The social hour completed a very interesting afternoon. The hostess committee was composed of Mesdames Angus J. Cruickshank, E. M. Blake, Claude Brown, S. W. Stanley, Earl Morris, Charles Blackburn, J. E. Paul and Georgia Bradbury.

EXPERIENCES IN HOLY LAND RECOUNTED BY SANTA ANAN

To those of us who are unable to heed the Red God's call, and "go-go-go away from here," the letters that come from travelers in the far places of the world, are of particular interest, with their graphic pictures of strange places and peoples. Among Santa Ana travelers who delight their families and friends with word pictures of what they are seeing and experiencing, is Miss Freble Drake, who sailed in the early winter on the Belgenland, for a tour of the world.

Among Miss Drake's letters to her sister, Mrs. Charles F. Smith, 1717 North Broadway, is a recent one in which she told of Palestine and the Holy Land. In this letter she wrote:

"It is a delightful cruise of one week from Bombay, India, to Port Temfik, Egypt, where we left the S. S. Belgenland for the journey overland to Jerusalem. After two weeks spent in India, where we had seen so much that was both interesting and tragic, we were all glad to have some of the unpleasant impressions offset by our trip to the beautiful Taj Mahal temple and leave with its glory and splendor to linger in our memory."

"We arrived in Jerusalem in the night and were awakened early by the Moslem calling for morning prayers. We dressed hurriedly and went out into the street for we knew there would be many interesting things to see. It was Holy week and throngs of pilgrims always come to Jerusalem at Easter time to visit the holy places, to worship and to pay their vows—people of different races and religions. It was a motley crowd and we had to dodge all kinds of animals and vehicles. The natives were bringing to market their fruit and vegetables loaded on the backs of camels and donkeys. Shepherd boys, dressed as in Bible times, were driving their goats through the streets to pastures outside of the city walls."

"Jerusalem is a mixture of the ancient and modern. We were taken to a trip was made to the Dead Sea. We traveled over miles of barren plains, up hills and down deep gorges, then to the River Jordan and on to Jericho which is in the midst of a verdant, fruitful oasis with beautiful orchards of oranges, lemons and date palms. On our return we stopped at Bethany. We visited many more places rich with Biblical history and interesting in their present life. After all, one's impressions of Palestine depend largely on the state of mind one brings to it and his profound faith and veneration for its sacred past."

Smart Spring Function Is Presented By Mrs. Burke

My Lady Spring, with her baskets of smiling flowers, was friendly aide yesterday to Mrs. Joe Burke when she entertained a group of friends at a beautifully appointed bridge luncheon in her home at 491 South Ross street. For every detail of entertaining was eloquent of the vernal season, from the baskets wherein Transvaal daisies and deep blue delphinium, or roses and garden flowers formed a colorful background to the tables, to the luncheon appointments and those for the afternoon of bridge.

Linen draped tables were each centered with a cut glass basket of mixed blossoms, whose varied tints were repeated in the metal ribbon bows on the handles. Rose clusters adorned the place cards, and the toes following chicken on pate, asparagus tips, fluffy tea biscuits, molded salad and other delicious features of the main course of the luncheon, were in the form of baskets of sweet peas. Mrs. Burke's house-guests, her sister, Mrs. Frank A. Black of San Pedro, and sister-in-law, Mrs. Reuben O. Bourne of South Pasadena, dotedly served the menu.

Quaint little Victorian ladies adorned the tulle cards distributed for bridge, harmonizing with the attractive card table covers and other bridge appointments. Mrs. Burke had chosen graceful flower baskets in majolica for her prizes, and these were secured by Mrs. Cora Cavina, Mrs. Fred C. Rowland and Mrs. Theo. A. Winbiger.

In addition to Mrs. Black and Mrs. Bourne, from out of the city, was Mrs. Charles M. Richards of San Jose, house-guest of Mrs. Frank A. Bridegroom-elect Has Compliment Paid Him By Man Friends

While it is usually the bride that occupies the limelight, friends of Henry Williams decided to honor him at a party last night, at the same time that his fiancée, Miss Elaine Wharton, was being complimented by Mrs. Burr Shaffer.

Walter O. Hill was ringleader in the affair, bidding the group of men to his home at 1019 Hickory street. Most of the guests were members of a bridge club with their wives or fiancées, so bridge was the amusement of the evening, and prizes were presented.

Frank Andrews, scoring high, and New Schick, low. At the same time the genial host guest was surprised by a shower, burlisquing the one tendered Miss Wharton. However the joke gifts were accompanied by a pair of handsome pajamas and a tie, which Mr. Williams was assured, were for his "trousseau."

Another surprise feature was when Radio KFON, Long Beach, broadcast the story of the party and its honor guest's betrothal to the charming Santa Ana girl. The effort had been for one of the artists to sing "The Prisoner's Song," dedicating it to Mr. Williams. He is a member of the firm of Williams and Kient, radio supplies.

A Dutch lunch completed the evening enjoyed by Messrs. Hill, Williams, Ned Schick of Orange, William Penn, J. H. Dangier, Victor Hupp, Lawrence Kients, and Frank Andrews.

The
DAY
by ALLENE SUMNER

Every family of any size whatever has one child singled out to be the artist or genius or swan of the family. This child really may be possessed of gifts, or the parental necessity of believing that they have created something unusual may endow him or her with those attributes.

But whether a real or pseudo-genius, the family has a real problem in its hands. In fact, talented children often make such tumult that one is inclined to believe families devoid of them truly blessed, and makes one wonder, too, why any family should insist on having one.

A BOOK ABOUT IT

Sarah Millin's new novel, "An Artist in the Family," treats this subject ably. Theo Bissaker, the son of middle class South African farmers, is the artist in the Bissaker family. Exploiting Tom, the other son, who is not a genius, the Bissakers by dint of their own and their garden-variety son's thrift and sweat and sacrifice, send Theo back to England to Cambridge.

They live for his letters and think no economy or toll too great so long as the artist in the family is being educated, as his talents deserve. But about the time Theo is supposed to be graduating from Cambridge he returns home, confessing that he hasn't been to school at all but has been painting and living on the money lent him by his father and brother.

AN ADDED BURDEN

And that isn't the half of it. He brings with him a wife and her child. Theo naively explains that he married her because he felt sorry for her with the baby's everything. Pinned down, he admits of course that he expects his family to support the three of them, and the poor old parents, knowing it's that or starvation for the three of them, bend their backs to the load some more, take on Theo's quixotic gesture, continue to sacrifice the other son and his splendid wife to the cause of "the artist in the family" and his rag-tag family, and relieve themselves with outbursts of reproaches and remarks which make life miserable for everyone.

The author takes no stand and issues no propaganda. She neither says that art must be served at any cost to those who are not born with the artist's temperament, nor that it must not be. She merely tells the story of its selfish demands. But she makes Theo almost likable, too, being more to be pitied than censured, for he is helpless in a workaday world.

Life is full of such stories. All of us know families in which every member but one works and sacrifices and denies himself in order that the "genius" often takes his chance for granted, and in his success forgets all about those who made it possible.

The Tynmites then quickly went back to the garden where they spent an hour or so at work, and then one said, "Let's rest, and play." A daisy walked right up and said, "Oh, thanks for fixing up our bed. The garden looks just wonderful. You've all done well today."

"And, now, we'll give you quite a treat, that is, if you like music sweet. We have a little orchestra that plays fine melody. The tunes are queer, I will admit, but with the flowers they make a hit. You Tynmites can all sit down, and you will shortly see."

So, on the ground the Tynmites sat. Said one, "What do you think of that? We're going to have some music. It will make me want to dance. Bring on your orchestra," he cried. "All right," the daisy then replied. "Now, all of you be patient. Give the players all a chance."

A little cricket then hopped out, and took its place and looked about. Right soon a bullfrog joined it. They were funny as could be. "I'm scared," cried Clowny, full of fear. "What is that buzzing right near here?" The Tynmites looked and shortly found it was a bumble bee.

YOST BROADWAY THEATRE

"The Escape," current attraction at the Yost Broadway theatre, is a modern adaptation of Paul Armstrong's great stage hit and offers Virginia Valli some of the finest moments of her screen career.

New York, with its teeming tenements and its glittering night clubs, has been used in thoroughly modernizing Armstrong's magnificent play.

In this colorful background Miss Valli appears first as a lowly girl of "The Kettle," and, later, as the vivacious hostess of the Blue Moon, a gilded club owned and operated by Jerry Magee, as portrayed by William Russell.

Gripping action and intense drama have been adroitly combined by Rosson in dove-tailing the story as brought to the screen by Paul Schofield. There are innumerable "little moments," those vital touches which go far toward making a great picture, and virtually every great player in the east has been made to stand out in unforgettable characterization.

WEST COAST-WALKER

"Don't be a type!" That is Greta Garbo's advice to the woman who wants to appear well groomed all the time.

"There is nothing more deadly than the wearing of the same type of gown the year around," says Miss Garbo, who is now playing the stellar role of "The Divine Woman," which is being shown as the feature attraction of the West Coast-Walker theatre.

"There is no doubt that the clothes affect the wearer mentally, and, if you wear the same type the year around, your mind, as well as your personality, gets into a rut.

"It is true that one sort of beauty is best offset by a certain type of gown. Some people wear sports clothing better than any other models and it is a temptation for them to want to wear such clothing all the time because it is the most becoming. But that is bad psychology! You should be sure that each year's wardrobe includes a variety of models, feminine evening gowns, dainty afternoon frocks, and tailored sports models."

WEST END THEATRE

"Ladies Must Dress," a comedy, is the current entertainment at the West End theatre.

The story centers about the affairs of five people in a big department store. Earle Foxe, as the "menace," is remarkably clever and gives the screen something wholly new in the way of villains.

GRAIN GROWERS TO HOLD FIELD DAY SATURDAY

Grain growers of Orange county, together with a few growers from neighboring counties will leave their many duties Saturday, May 12, to participate in the Seventh Annual Grain Growers' Field Day conducted by the Agricultural Extension Service and the Orange County Farm Bureau.

The program calls for those attending to assemble at Culver's corner, three miles south of Tustin, on the San Diego highway, in time to leave at 9:30. From there the caravan will proceed to fields around El Toro and arrive in El Toro at 12:30 for lunch. During the noon hour Harry Froelich, manager of the El Toro warehouse, will speak on the value of clean grain. Prof. W. W. Mackie, division of agronomy of the University of California, will speak on grain diseases and their control. Adjourning at about 2 o'clock the tour will take in different grain variety plantings on the Irvine ranch and visit the variety test plots conducted by the extension service. Plantings of wheat, barley and oats will be viewed during the day.

The committee planning the program for the day include W. G. Mitchell, chairman, superintendent of the Irvine ranch; Aaron Buchheim, San Juan Capistrano; Ben Osterman, El Toro; John Osterman, Tustin, president of the Orange County Farm Bureau; and W. M. Cory, assistant farm advisor.

THE FRENCH ELECTIONS

The French elections have returned Poincaré to power with a good working majority. While the expected happened, it must be none the less gratifying to the great masses of the more thoughtful of the French people to have the result assured, for there is still much of the Poincaré program to be carried out.

The victory of Poincaré is the triumph of the Moderates, over against the radicals on the one hand and the extreme nationalists on the other hand. It is a different Poincaré who has been working out the destiny of France the last few years, from the Poincaré who just after the war was bent upon the complete humiliation of Germany and the military ascendancy of France. The Poincaré of the post-war period was a fire eater whom even the Moderates could not tolerate. How to beat Germany to her knees was the aim of that Poincaré. He occupied the Ruhr, and aroused the bitterness of the whole German people and the distrust of the allies.

The Poincaré of the past three years has been giving his best thought to the financial stabilization of France. He found France practically bankrupt and without credit. Government notes to meet current expenses could be had only for periods of three months at exorbitant interest. External 7% French bonds were selling in the United States at 87. 8% bonds were selling far below par. The French franc sold as low as two cents. It was this financial problem to which Poincaré addressed himself; and he has accomplished wonders. The franc has been stabilized around five cents. The 8% bonds have been retired. The 7% bonds have risen to sell at 106. Long term loans have been made to sell at lesser interest. The country is solvent, and that too without the payment of heavy indemnities by Germany.

The continuation of Poincaré means the completion of the financial task, and the ability of France to meet her obligations to the world. It took France some time to realize that she could not hope to recoup herself for her huge indebtedness by squeezing Germany. There was nothing in Germany to squeeze. Perhaps the finding out of that is the very best thing that could have happened to France. It compelled her to face a real situation. And to Poincaré's leadership and financial wizardry, France owes her financial rehabilitation.

We may soon expect to hear of an agreement between the United States and France concerning her indebtedness to us. If next the French government can reduce her military establishment, which now is one of the largest in Europe, and is built upon a universal conscription, France will find herself on the high road to prosperity. The work of M. Briand looks in that direction. His proposal to our government for a mutual agreement to outlaw war between the two nations has not turned out in the manner expected, but it at least has shown the pacific spirit of France.

To have the government which has done so much for France during the last few years continued, is not only a good thing for France, but it is a good thing for the peace and the stability of Europe.

Red and green lights regulated, like traffic, the addresses of speakers at the Methodist convention in Kansas City. The speakers were all right, of course, according to their lights.

JAPAN MOBILIZES

At any moment we may expect a declaration of war to issue from Japan and from Nationalist headquarters in China. Whether or no such a declaration is made, a state of war exists. Japan has been constantly on the alert to see to it that the Nationalists are not able to win a complete victory over the northern forces. It now is the second time that Japan has interfered when the Nationalists were showing a strong winning streak against the northern army.

It is more than a mere suspicion that Japan feels that her interests do not lie with the unification of China, if such unification is going to be conducted by those who are in sympathy with the forces that control the Nationalists and the Southern army. After two years of civil war, under famine and conditions that result from civil conflict, Japan, under the guise of protecting the Shantung railway, is preparing to beat the Nationalists back. They must either practically grant the right of Japan over control of the railroad and certain sections which, no group that could claim any right to sovereignty could grant, or encounter Japanese opposition and her army.

We cannot forget the twenty-one propositions that Japan announced some years ago China must sign. The tremendous pressure of public opinion of the nations made it impossible for Japan to carry out her threat then. She evidently has been watching her opportunity since. We will watch and we shall see what we shall see.

Speaking of the newest long-dress edict from Paris, isn't it about time charity covered a multitude of shins?

WILD PREDICTIONS

There are still predictions that there are certain Wall street elements who do not want Herbert Hoover for President and that they are going to encompass his defeat at the convention. Well, maybe they will. They prevented Roosevelt from being nominated in 1912. The people might act themselves again if the convention plainly defeats their desire and a candidate is selected by this group. What the people would do to such a candidate would be just too bad.

There are few fearful of this. We do not believe that an influence can control the National Republican party unless there are influences among the Haynes and the Doherty and the Sinclair and the Doherty and the Doherty and the Doherty that they have almost ac-

CAMPAIGNS OF RIDICULE

There is nothing more effective than ridicule to defeat your opponent. Make your opponent ridiculous in the eyes of the people and you have beaten him. The people do not usually elect a joke. No hero remains long a hero who does something that makes him an object of ridicule. Mr. Bryan was one of the most serious of men, but he became the victim of ridicule, and it must be said that he furnished his opponents with the material to work on. Lieut. Hobson, the hero of the Merimac in the Spanish war, ceased to be a hero when a silly girl kissed him. He never recovered from that experience.

We have every reason to expect campaigns of ridicule during the coming elections over the country. We suspect that ridicule of Thompson in Chicago did more to defeat him than serious attacks upon his policies and his administration. The King George incident was one of the primary features of the campaign in Illinois recently. Pictures of King George "sticking his snoot" into American affairs, with the horror-stricken Thompson trying to shoo him off, were much more effective than logical campaign articles. We recall the Hearst cartoons of Willie and Teddy during the presidential campaign of 1896. There was nothing in that campaign that made the Republican party appear more ridiculous. Ridicule failed at that time largely because of a demoralized opposition which a blast from Gabriel's trumpet could hardly bring back to a semblance of order.

There is a kind of opposition which ought not or cannot be taken seriously. The only effective way to meet it is with a smile or a joke, but in the main it should be said that ridicule is never argument, nor should it take the place of argument. This is the day of the cartoonist. Any candidate's physical peculiarity—Mr. Hughes' whiskers, Mr. Roosevelt's exposed teeth, Mr. Coolidge's pointed nose and placid forced smile, Senator Willis' big voice, the generous scope of Mr. Bryan's mouth—are great assets for the cartoonist. It may be recalled that in the Blaine-Cleveland campaign the shape of the candidates' heads was pictured as the reason why Blaine should be elected and Cleveland defeated. It is a wise voter who knows when a really worthy man becomes the object of ridicule when he should be taken seriously.

Senator Foss is keynote for the Republicans, Mr. Bowers for the Democrats. Their jobs will be slightly different this year, the senator saying nothing while Mr. Bowers must say everything.

A MYSTERY MAY BE SOLVED

"Death Valley Scotty" is going to appear as a witness in a divorce case. We are not interested in the divorce case. They are so common that they are almost ceasing to be news. But we can imagine the breathless suspense with which the public is waiting to hear some of the responses that "Scotty" will make in the cross-examination when they ask him where he got his wealth and who paid for his wild and speedy flights across the continent with his thousands of dollars in tips.

Whether he has a fabulous mine of his own or it was an advertising stunt of a railroad we do not know but we are curious to find out. Maybe this divorce case will be the means of satisfying our curiosity.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

HIS OWN
Each child born into the world has a place waiting for him. Too often parents and teachers try to find another place, one they think better, for him. Then the trouble begins.

A boy grows along until he is about twelve years old. Then he seems to become another boy. He has thoughts and ways of his own. He says he doesn't like the suit you want to buy him, doesn't like the drawing lesson. You thought the suit very handsome and pictured him walking proudly down the aisle next Sunday, all the neighbors admiring. You had tried to make him draw because it would be a fine thing to have a cartoonist in the family and he did make funny pictures. Now he says quite stoutly that he won't wear that suit and he cannot do the drawing.

Well, what of it? Cheer up. There is a place for that boy waiting just around the corner of the years. Let him go ahead. Keep him working. As long as he works and plays and eats and sleeps in health he is perfectly safe. It is only when he refuses to do anything at all that he is in danger. You are having trouble with him because you are trying to fit him into a place where he does not belong because it is not his place. He will find his own if you let him alone and let him work it out. Very few boys are so helpless that they need assistance in discovering their places after they are nineteen. Keep them going hard until then. By that time certain signs and signals will point the way.

All children cannot be leaders. Some of us must be hewers of wood and drawers of water. One of the causes of great unhappiness in families lies there. Parents want their children to lead, to take high places, and they are not that kind of children. They have a place in the crowd where they will fit and be happy. To force them to try to come out over the heads of the crowd is to make them and yourselves very miserable.

"You say my son cannot be a doctor. You want him to work in the shop. This is America, the land of freedom and opportunity. My boy is going to have the best place I can get for him. He shall go to college and be a doctor and you shall be ashamed of yourself."

Why do people think a professional life is easy, honorable, a prize in comparison with a trade well mastered, a business well administered, a special bit of workmanship that speaks of skill and power and brings good prices? Factory work is not inspiring. It is deadening to the soul, but work that is one's own, work that has a spark of creative fire is unlimited joy to the worker. We need that kind of worker, we need that spirit in America.

Think carefully about the child in your home. Study well his gifts and then help him to find his own place. And don't try to teach a boy that sitting at a desk writing in a book that records another's gains is a higher place in life than that of a workbench that supports the good work of his hands. Nor need a girl believe that stenography is the only field for a nice girl, nor teaching school, nor giving music lessons? The world is full of places. Each has his own.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

BEES

The honey bee lives out a life
Of highly taxing toil and strife

From dawn until the gathering gloom
It flies about from bloom to bloom

And gathers through the summer's heat
A lot of food it cannot eat.

The bumble bee has little zest
For anything but ease and rest

But while he labors he employs
A deal of loud and useless noise

Which leads to the belief that he
Is busy as the honey bee.

Yet all that ever he lays by
Is just his needful food supply.

The honey bee in hives we pen
And make it gather sweets which men,

What time the autumn lamps are lit,
Proceed to take away from it.

To store upon their pantry shelves
And, through the winter eat themselves.

The bumble bee, shrewd canny drone,
Is in the meanwhile left alone.

Which shows that sometimes idleness
Is really quite a big success.

Mr. Dempsey still had enough pep left to put Mr. Hearns down for the count of half a million.

NO TROUBLE FOR HIM

Probably when Byrd is spending his year in the South Polar zone, Lindbergh will run down a couple of times just to see how he is getting along.

Dr. Crane's Friendly Talk

By Dr. Frank Crane

EVOLUTION GOING ON NOW!

Most of us think of evolution entirely in terms of the past. It is usually discussed as a method by which the world was formed or mankind was created, or a theory of whether or not we descended from an ape.

It is hardly ever discussed in terms of the future. What will man become? What kind of a creature will man be ten thousand years from now? Will he probably be as superior to us as we are ahead of the cave man?

Horace Bushnell, in his memorable address on "The Power of an Endless Life," showed the amazing possibilities of the effect of cumulative years upon a growing organism; such as man.

Dr. R. A. Milliken, who discovered the "cosmic ray," which has since been called the Milliken ray, in a remarkable address the other day referred to the radio active processes of the world by which heavier atoms are being disintegrated into lighter ones. In other words, somewhere in the universe there is a building-up process going on to replace the tearing-down process represented by radio activity.

Dr. Milliken's experiments constitute the first discovery of evidence which warrants the belief that there is continuous creation.

That there is destruction and that there is death and dissolution are well-known facts.

We are now facing the new fact that there is constant creation!

Evolution is a slow process. Its field lies perhaps in that sub-microscopic world of atoms and electrons. Now that we are beginning to peer a little into the mysteries of that world, we are coming upon a law of tremendous importance.

And this law is that man not only stands now at the summit of created things, but that all evolution is going forward.

Man is improving. By his increase in knowledge he is adapting himself more and more for this terrestrial habitat.

Life in any case remains a mystery, but the most remarkable thing about life is not its causation but its quality of resurgence. Every spring brings with it the unexpected and newness of life.

John P. Pike said that the essential quality of man is his improvidence. That quality is emphasized by this new aspect of continuous evolution.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

I have just been talking to a casual smoking car companion about the new beauty that machine industry is creating and turning into one of its most effective sales arguments.

I ventured the guess that within fifty years our machine age would be creating more beauty than the cathedral-building centuries created.

"I don't think so," said my companion, between puffs. "For this is an age of useful and short-lived articles. Two things have always characterized the beauty that the great-artistic ages have produced.

"In the first place the men who created the older beauty were not thinking of mere utility or the size of the pay they would get for the thing they created.

"In the second place, the beauty they created was permanent. The great cathedrals were not used up, as even the most beautiful motor is today. Their beauty was and is ageless. Great beauty is not created by the man who is working for an age, but by the man who is working for the ages.

"No, I am afraid that the designer of modern apparatus who pulls down fat salaries cannot hope to join the company of the immortals you find in the Louvre and the Luxembourg. And I am afraid that the beauty of a car that passes in a season cannot be thought of in the same way you think of the beauty of a cathedral that endures through the centuries."

Turkish Religious Reforms

Christian Science Monitor

Fourteen years ago the Sultan, as Caliph, proclaimed a holy war and called all Islam to the defense of the faith against the allied powers. Recently the Turkish National Assembly by unanimous vote eliminated all references to Allah or Islam.

This vote was the last step in a long campaign definitely to divorce the church and the Turkish state. The campaign was initiated by Mustafa Kemal Pasha soon after he organized the Nationalist government. It was carried on slowly because to have separated Islam from the state overnight would have been a short cut to revolution. First came the unveiling of the women. Then the abolition of that symbol of Islam—the fez. Next the harem was declared illegal. And perhaps most important of all in its effect, not only upon the next generation in Turkey but also upon the United States, the Koran and all Islamic teaching were eliminated from the schools.

This is one of the factors which has delayed ratification of the Lausanne Treaty by the Senate. Opposition has developed because American missionary schools in Turkey are required to follow exactly the same regulations as Turkish schools. In other words, American teachers and missionaries must agree that they will not teach Christianity and that there will be no religious pictures, crosses or Bibles displayed in the schools.

Many Americans in Turkey state that they do not entirely share the opinion of the United States senate on this question. Such generally take the view that foreigners cannot expect any greater privileges than the Turks grant in their own schools. They recognize that the Turkish Government is facing a difficult problem in its reforms, and that to allow Christian teaching in foreign schools, while at the same time prohibiting Muslim teaching in Turkish schools, would make the conduct of those reforms almost impossible.

The Turkish Government, on the other hand, claims to have co-operated as fully with American schools as it possibly could. The trial of three young American women for having made Christian converts at Broussa, was according to reliable reports, merely a matter of routine to fulfill the letter of the law and to satisfy local public opinion, which at one time was rather aroused concerning the incident. The presiding judge was a very intelligent person and postponed the trial on three different occasions, thus allowing public indignation to cool off.

Close Watch By Public Is Beneficial

Pasadena Star-News

When politics controls government, whether national or municipal, there is a disposition on the part of some people to look upon the public treasury as legitimate prey for any raid that can be devised.

Recently in New York City it was found necessary to resort to the fingerprint system to prevent fraudulent drains upon the street fund. There was suspicion that emergency workers engaged in cleaning snow from thoroughfares had been drawing double, perhaps treble, pay, through the adoption of assumed names. Of course, this could have been possible only with the connivance of dishonest foremen.

When the fingerprint rule was first effect, fifty per cent of the pay checks in one district went unclaimed, the workers fearing detection. On a smaller scale, similar results were reported in other districts while in certain sections there was no such discrepancy, indicating honesty on the part of the foremen.

Public business is the taxpayers' business; and they have the right to know that they are getting their money's worth of service.

It's War

San Diego Union

Chinese atrocities now claim newspaper space in this country, as the Nationalist armies occupy Teinan and Japanese machine-gunners guard the foreign settlement there. The current reports are probably as accurate as war-zone reports usually are—which is not very; but the horrors of the scene must be blamed upon war, rather than upon Chinamen. War has always had its atrocities and always will have, as long as there is any such thing. Inevitable and murderous war is as much a weapon of war as a bayonet or a rifle is, and it cannot be curbed by endeavor to make war humane.

No army can justify its condemnation of its fighters transgressing the Marquis of Queensbury rules.
